A process, invented by Hooibrenk, facilitating the tertilization of plants, has lately been successfully tried, according to Les Mondes, in the Botanical Gardens of Vienna. This consists in simply touching the extremity of the stigms of a flower about to bloom with a brush dipped in honey, or, still better, in honey mixed with the pollen of the plant to be operated upon. This, in the case of Hibiscus Mericanus, which had never borne fruit, resulted in the production of perfect seeds. The operation has succeeded very well with certain fruit-trees, some of which have time. As an explanation of this result it is suggested that the honey keeps the grains of pollen upon the stigms, and thus favors the development of the pollen tube, which is indispensable to fertilization. The substitution of glycerine IMPORTERS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, for honey in the experiment has been suggested.

HABITS OF THE GRASSHOPPER.—Professor Humiston of Worthington, Minnesota, described to the Tribune correspondent the grasshopper's mode of depositing her eggs in the soil, a subject which be has had excellent opportunity for studying this year. DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

THE PUBLIC ARE CAUTIONED AGAINST The reduced statements frequently made, "that the composition of Chronodynk is known to Chemists and the Medical profession." The fact is, Chlorodyne was discovered and invented by Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE (ex Army Medical Staff), and so named by him, and it has baffled all attempts at analysis by the first Chemists of the day. The method and secret of the propagation have never been unbyats by the first Chemists of the day. The method and secret of the preparation have never been published. It is obvious, therefore, that anything sold under the name, save Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S. CHLORODYNE, is a spurious imitation.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne.
